Sarah Woodson my dearly beloved Wife departed this life on the 20th day of November 1798.— being sick about 10 Weeks with an Asthma & other Disorders not known or understood by the Phisicians who attended her, she submitted to her tedious and lingering disorders with patience and resignation, and met the slow approaches of the King of terrors with a calmness and serenity which can be experienced only by the good & Virtuous. For for 4 Weeks or more the last of her sickness she could not breathe lying swing to the exceeding shortness of breath, she was therefore obliged to sit in Bed leaning forward on a bench covered with pillows, lying down only a few minutes at a time perhaps once or twice in 12 or 24 hours as her complaint might be, and in this posture she expired, without a groan or a struggle, she retained her senses to the last moment.—
For me to do justice to the Character of this excellent Woman is almost impossible. suffice it to say, She was a dutiful and obedient Daughter to a good, kind and indulgent Mother; a loving, friendly and obliging Sister; a tender, attentive and most affectionate Wife ever mindfull of the interest and happiness of a Husband (who was truly sensible of her many Virtues) and kindly indulgent to his weakness and foibles; a careful and very affectionate Mother ever thoughtful of her helpless Infants even to the last moment of her life; as Mistress of a Family she was industrious, careful, provident and economical; her loss will ever be deplored, for ever be lamented by her disconsolate Husband, whose ardent wish is that he may be enabled to live and to die as she did
