Printed by Joseph Galbreath, Glasgow, 1772

Repaired by Asa Johnson in January 1953, though it had evidently been rebound and trimmed many years before. a. j.

These first eight chapters of Genesis have been taken from the Bible of my father (WHO LIVED 1825 to 1879), and are used to replace pages torn from this Bible of my maternal grandfather by a self-invited female guest of 1870's, who used the rather soft paper to make curl-papers, (so Mother said afterward).

This newer Bible, printed in 1851, was presented to my father, Joseph Hiram Johnson by Mr. R. Richar, who kept a book and music store in Petersburg, and later moved to Richmond, where he was engaged in organ tuning, and attended St. Mark's Episcopal Church at Clay and First Streets.

Johnson Rites To Be Held Here Today

Funeral services for Stuart A. Johnson, 63, a native of Virginia and former assistant to the director of the Gulf Coast regional construction office of the Maritime Commission, who died Saturday in New Orleans, were to be held here at 4 P. M. today at the Joseph W. Bliley Funeral Home, Third and Marshall Streets, with burial in Hollywood Cemetery.

Mr. Johnson, in his early manhood, was associated with the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company as an apprentice machinist and draftsman.

At the close of World War I he was appointed by the United States Shipping Board as resident representative at Wilmington, Del., and later served in a similar capacity at Savannah, Ga., and at New Orleans where he held the position for the Atlantic District of the board.

In 1924 he left the Shipping Board to engage in engineering sales and still later was a consultant engineer at Galveston, Texas.

In 1930 Mr. Johnson again became associated with shipbuilding and was a repair estimator for the Sun Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company at Chester, Pa., and for the Maryland Dry Dock Company at Baltimore until 1941 when he became associated with the United States Maritime Commission as senior naval architect. At the beginning of World War II he was sent to New Orleans to establish there the Gulf Coast regional construction office of the commission. He concluded his work at New Orleans in November, 1947.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Corrie Leavell Cosby Johnson; four sons, S. Forrer Johnson, of Newport News; Alan P. Johnson, of Washington, and Garland H. and Leonard C. Johnson, of New Orleans; a daughter, Mrs. George P. Menkel, of Baltimore; a sister, Mrs. R. J. Lawrence, of Portsmouth; an uncle, Asa Johnson, of Richmond, and four grandchildren.
