Pursuant to an order of the Court, I have surveyed the land belonging to John Thompson, situated in the town of York, County of Berkeley, State of South Carolina, as follows:

The survey begins at the northeast corner of the above-mentioned land, which is the intersection of the northwest boundary line of the town of York and the boundary line of the former estate of John Thompson.

The survey extends southward along the boundary line of the town of York, then westward along the boundary line of the former estate of John Thompson, and finally northward along the boundary line of the town of York to form a rectangle of 270 acres.

The survey is marked with the following monuments:

- North line: 200 paces
- East line: 200 paces
- South line: 200 paces
- West line: 200 paces

The survey is surveyed with precision and accuracy, and the boundaries are clearly marked with iron pegs.
